Subject: follow up!

Hi Stephanie,

I hope you had a great first day!

I have asked around about any policy that would prohibit you from being barefoot on campus and I cannot find any. I checked the policy register, the code of conduct, and with both our campus manager and the dean of students office and could not find anything! So, I would say you are fine to go without shoes. If any faculty or staff member approaches you about it, just let them know you have spoken with me and refer them to me with any questions. If another student approaches you, just tell them that you have spoken with the dean's office and there is no policy that prohibits you from being barefoot on campus. Hopefully, people will just mind their business but you know how that goes!

Best wishes for an awesome semester!

Thanks,

Dr. Walls
